Portfolio

A black and white photograph of a classical statue, likely a woman, seated and leaning forward. She is wearing a draped garment, possibly a chiton or himation, which is intricately folded and draped over her body. Her right arm is resting on her knee, and her left arm is also visible, draped over her lap. The statue is set against a dark, textured background. The lighting highlights the contours of the statue's body and the folds of the fabric.
